Ulm University in numbers

Postgraduate programmes and programmes for the general public

Study & Teaching

Science City Ulm

Ulm is a city in Baden-Württemberg, Germany. It borders on the Danube and is the largest city in most economically dynamic regions. With a population of more than 120,000 people, Ulm has an ideal size for living, studying and working. The city is a culturally diverse metropolis with a rich history and a vibrant university community.

A scientifically orientated city and the gateway to the world

Ulm is a city in Baden-Württemberg, Germany. It borders on the Danube and is the largest city in most economically dynamic regions. With a population of more than 120,000 people, Ulm has an ideal size for living, studying and working. The city is a culturally diverse metropolis with a rich history and a vibrant university community.

A scientifically orientated city and the gateway to the world

Ulm is a city in Baden-Württemberg, Germany. It borders on the Danube and is the largest city in most economically dynamic regions. With a population of more than 120,000 people, Ulm has an ideal size for living, studying and working. The city is a culturally diverse metropolis with a rich history and a vibrant university community.

A scientifically orientated city and the gateway to the world

Ulm is a city in Baden-Württemberg, Germany. It borders on the Danube and is the largest city in most economically dynamic regions. With a population of more than 120,000 people, Ulm has an ideal size for living, studying and working. The city is a culturally diverse metropolis with a rich history and a vibrant university community.

A scientifically orientated city and the gateway to the world

Ulm is a city in Baden-Württemberg, Germany. It borders on the Danube and is the largest city in most economically dynamic regions. With a population of more than 120,000 people, Ulm has an ideal size for living, studying and working. The city is a culturally diverse metropolis with a rich history and a vibrant university community.

A scientifically orientated city and the gateway to the world

Ulm is a city in Baden-Württemberg, Germany. It borders on the Danube and is the largest city in most economically dynamic regions. With a population of more than 120,000 people, Ulm has an ideal size for living, studying and working. The city is a culturally diverse metropolis with a rich history and a vibrant university community.

A scientifically orientated city and the gateway to the world

Ulm is a city in Baden-Württemberg, Germany. It borders on the Danube and is the largest city in most economically dynamic regions. With a population of more than 120,000 people, Ulm has an ideal size for living, studying and working. The city is a culturally diverse metropolis with a rich history and a vibrant university community.

A scientifically orientated city and the gateway to the world

Ulm is a city in Baden-Württemberg, Germany. It borders on the Danube and is the largest city in most economically dynamic regions. With a population of more than 120,000 people, Ulm has an ideal size for living, studying and working. The city is a culturally diverse metropolis with a rich history and a vibrant university community.

A scientifically orientated city and the gateway to the world

Ulm is a city in Baden-Württemberg, Germany. It borders on the Danube and is the largest city in most economically dynamic regions. With a population of more than 120,000 people, Ulm has an ideal size for living, studying and working. The city is a culturally diverse metropolis with a rich history and a vibrant university community.